

WADSWORTH PARTY NOW AT WARRENTON

Horseback Riders Reach
Second Stage of Long Trip.

Mrs. Herbert Wadsworth and her accompanying horseback riding party reached the second stage of their journey this afternoon when they rode into Warrenton, Va. The little town had heard of their coming and as the well-known social leader and her friends galloped into town many were out to see them.

They will remain in Warrenton only a short time and proceed upon their journey to Mrs. Wadsworth's summer home in Genesee.

Start on 400-Mile Ride.

Mrs. Wadsworth and her party left Washington at 9 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the first stretch of their 400-mile horseback ride. In the party were Miss Margaret Cary, of Buffalo, N. Y.; George Marvin, and Edward P. Smith. Two wagonloads of baggage were taken along.

Plans for the long horseback ride were made some weeks ago, at which time it was expected Miss Ethel Roosevelt, daughter of the former President, would be a member of the party. Miss Roosevelt's physician would not consent to her taking the ride.

The entire neighborhood around the Wadsworth home, on Dupont circle, was highly interested in the start. The horses were lined at the north entrance to the mansion and Mrs. Wadsworth and Miss Cary, in their smart riding habits, were bubbling over with enthusiasm for the start.

Make Last Preparations.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Marvin bustled about with the groom, giving the finishing touches to the trappings of each mount, with a pat here and there and a rub down to each mount. The horses seemed to sniff the exhilarating country side ahead and were restless to get away.

Mrs. Wadsworth was the first one up and Miss Cary followed. Mr. Marvin and Mr. Smith swung into their saddles and as the groom took up their places behind the little party the riders were off at a brisk canter.

A few minutes after the party had started, the baggage wagons drove off from the rear entrance to the mansion and soon the little cavalcade was lost to sight on Massachusetts avenue on the way into Virginia.

First Night at Fairfax.

The little party reached Fairfax in the evening, having determined to spend the night there instead of going at once to Warrenton. The horses which were taken on the trip had arrived in Washington yesterday morning and it was feared the long stretch from Washington to Warrenton would prove too much for the mounts.

Mrs. Wadsworth makes the trip to her summer home each year on horseback. This year the party will undergo several changes en route. Mr. Smith and Mr. Marvin will go only as far as Warrenton where two other men will join the party for another stretch of the way. David Grey, the author, and Representative Andrew J. Peters will be among the riders before the close of the trip.

Arrangements for the carnival are rapidly nearing completion, and the hall decorations, which will eclipse all previous efforts of this lodge, will be finished shortly.

The stage performances of the carnival will be under the direction of W. Lawson. Dr. and Mrs. Charles W. Enthusiastic Reception in New York Ends Triumphal Tour.

luncheon in their honor by the Aero Club tomorrow they agreed to remain over and keep that engagement.

There was an enormous crowd at the steamer's dock at Hoboken to greet the brothers, and they were cheered to the echo as they made their appearance. It was plain that the warmth of their reception was appreciated by the two brothers and their sister, and they smiled and bowed to the cheering crowd.

Both the brothers emphatically denied the report cable from Rome that J. P. Morgan had arranged to finance their manufacture of aeroplanes. "There is absolutely no truth in that report," declared Orville Wright. "As a matter of fact, we have been approached by a number of eminent American financiers who are willing to invest money in our enterprise, but we have not concluded any such arrangement, and we will not."

To Fly June 28.

"We will make our first flight in the United States at Fort Myer on June 28, and we will continue until we have met all of the details of the army tests."

Wilbur Wright eagerly examined the cable dispatches from Rome describing the accident to Lieutenant Calderara, and intimated that he was not much surprised at it.

"I warned the lieutenant not to undertake too much before I left Rome," declared Wilbur Wright. "As a matter of fact, he was not in the red-coated band, and with the odor of the sawdust came the crack of a pistol in the hands of a clown and the shrill whistle of the ringmaster-in-chief as he called the acts. Under the great spreading tent were thousands of youngsters, some ten years old and others three score and ten. Years counted for naught under the big circus tent and age was no bar to the fun."

Everybody who goes to a circus knows exactly what he is going to see, only he enjoys the novelty of seeing it done in a new way. The acrobats were there, and light-footed wire walkers. Sleek trained horses went through a maze of fancy movements and groups of elephants performed all sorts of antics, from riding barrels to using a telephone.

It was almost an impossibility to get either of the brothers to discuss their trip abroad, where they met on terms of common fellowship most of the rulers of Europe, and showed the experts there how they have conquered the air. Even to the reception committee, the Wrights maintained the taciturnity that has marked them in the past, and they showed conclusively that lionizing was as distasteful as ever.

Among those who boarded the liner at Quatrepoint to welcome the brothers were Acting President Holland Forbes, of the Aero Club of America; Dr. Wilbur Wright, of the Aeronautic Society, and Robert Lee Morrell, of the Automobile Club of America.

May Enter Race.

Another visitor, but one who combined business with pleasure, was L. L. Dozier, of the Aero Club of St. Louis, who attempted to interest the Wrights in a proposition to conduct a demonstration in the Mound City, next October, when the club that he represents, will hold a carnival at which a cash prize of $15,000 will be given for an aerial race.

Inasmuch as the brothers have contracts abroad that call for their appearance there next October, they were not prepared to finally dispose of the St. Louis offer at this time. One month from today they are to be in Washington to receive from the hands of President Taft the medals awarded by the Aero Club of America, which will be given to them in the White House.

The one member of the party that enjoyed the trip and the lionizing of the inventor, was Miss Katherine Wright. Since she went abroad to join Wilbur Wright, she has been the recipient of remarkable attentions, and her trips in the airship with her brother, Wilbur, did more than anything else to convince the European aeronauts that the machine is perfectly safe.

INSPECTORS RAID CIRCUS PEDDLERS

Twelve Arrests Made for Violation of District
Food Law.

Pure Food Inspectors C. E. Stoy and J. B. Buchanan have been about the busiest persons in the city since the circus arrived, and the fruit of their labors was displayed before Judge Kimball in the Police Court this morning, when they appeared as prosecuting witnesses in twelve cases of alleged violation of the pure food law.

Information was given at the Health Office Sunday that the pure food law was being openly violated at the circus grounds. The Health Inspectors were immediately dispatched to the place, and Sunday evening and yesterday frequent inspections were made of the various private booths and stalls where all sorts of foods were being sold.

Many Violate Law.

The candy and lemonade vendors with the circus were found to be in good shape. The local itinerant merchants, however, many of whom had gone into business simply for the two circus days, were not particular, and twelve stands were found where such delicacies as pigs' feet, pickled meats, Coney Island sandwiches, and other tempting viands were placed where wind and dust could enter men's mouths of all sorts.

All of the stands found violating the law were under the management of colored people.

After satisfying themselves as to the conditions, Inspectors Stoy and Buchanan secured a squad of policemen and swooped down on the stands, closing them up and arresting the proprietors. There was a small-sized riot when the crowd of men and women with their twelve prisoners in tow.

Crowd Is Attracted.

A crowd was attracted by the arrests, and followed the policemen and their prisoners to the patrol box, whence the prisoners were taken to the station. For all but one of the cases collateral was posted, and the vendors returned to the circus grounds.

In Police Court this morning only three of the vendors appeared to answer the charge against them. In two cases, those against John Thomas and Elmer Johnson, fines of $5 were imposed. In the case of Emma Jackson the court took her personal bond.

SOUTHEAST PLOT
SOLD FOR $5,900

Isaac Albionson has paid $5,900 for a large plot of ground in the block bounded by Eleventh, Twelfth, C and D streets southeast, which was formerly owned by George J. Miller. The property contains about 3,500 square feet and is understood Mr. Albionson intends improving it in the near future. The deal was made through the real estate firm of Willig, Gibbs & Daniel.

MOURN THE DEATH OF MRS. DALZELL

Funeral of Representative's
Wife to Be Held This Afternoon.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Dalzell, wife of Representative John Dalzell of Pennsylvania, who died last night at her home, 1655 New Hampshire avenue northwest, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the family residence. The Rev. Dr. Charles Wood, pastor of the Church of the Covenant, will officiate.

Following the services here, the body will be taken to Pittsburgh, where Mrs. Dalzell was born, and where she lived part of each year. Interment will be in the Allegheny Cemetery.

Although Mrs. Dalzell was first taken ill about six weeks ago, and although her condition for many days was considered serious, it was believed until yesterday afternoon that she would recover. For the last two weeks Mrs. Dalzell had been confined to her bed, but only a few days ago it was reported that she was doing excellently.

Relapse Leads to Death.

She suffered a relapse, however, from which she failed to recover. Representative Dalzell, and Samuel and Robert Duff Dalzell, her sons, and Robert Duff, a brother, were at the bedside when death came. William Sage Dalzell, the other son, a Pittsburgh attorney, and George M. Dunn, wife of Colonel Dunn, U. S. A., the daughter, were not in Washington.

Mrs. Dalzell, although not given to the official and diplomatic set of the Capital, President and Mrs. Taft, who have watched closely her illness, among the first to send flowers and to extend their sympathy to the family.

Representative Dalzell, a member of the House from Pittsburgh for more than twenty years, one of the all-powerful members on the committee of the "Big Five," and the right hand man of Speaker Cannon, came naturally into a position which required some entertaining. As much as possible, however, Mrs. Dalzell refrained from functions, devoting as much of her time as she believed possible to her domestic work.

Mrs. Dalzell's Life.

Mrs. Dalzell was sixty-three years old. She was the daughter of the late Prof. Peter Duff, who founded in Pittsburgh, the first business college in this country. At the age of fifteen, after some years in the public schools of Pittsburgh, she entered a seminary at Edgeworth, a suburb of Pittsburgh.

Mrs. Dalzell married Miss Duff in 1867, and when, twenty years later, he was elected to the House, she came with him to Washington. For several years they lived at the Arlington Hotel, but later they moved to the present residence in New Hampshire avenue.

MRS. BARNEY HOME
FROM ART EXHIBIT

Display in New York Is Entirely of Her Paintings.

Mrs. Albert Clifford Barney returned to Washington today from New York, where she went to attend the opening of an art exhibit in Knoedler's galleries, at which the display was entirely of Mrs. Barney's paintings.

The exhibit will continue ten days, and in that time society in New York will be given an opportunity to view the remarkable work of the Washington artist.

Mrs. Barney's tendencies are rather toward the impressionistic style, although she is a fine portrait painter, and within the maze of her creations there are many subjects of a woman pronounced.

One of the striking features of the exhibit is a portrait of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, which is labeled "Princess Alice," and shows the former President's eldest daughter in one of her happiest moods. Another striking picture is that of the Countess of Suffolk, formerly Miss Daisy Leiter. The story of her life, which is a woman, although the male sex has not been entirely snubbed by Mrs. Barney.

CAN IDENTIFY MAN, DECLARES STEVENS

Police, However, Still Hold
Theory That Negro Could Not Have Escaped.

"Everything that the police know has been printed in your paper," said Major Sylvester this morning, when asked if there were any new developments in the mysterious shooting of St. Bernard Stevens, at the United States Savings Bank, Fourteenth and U streets, a little more than two weeks ago.

"From what has been printed, the Times has interviewed practically every one who has been seen by the detectives. Perhaps it seems a little unusual that a chief of police would take a hand in a matter that would ordinarily be handled directly through the detective office, but the reason I had a written report of the detective work made to me was to justify myself that the investigation was being conducted in a way that would clear up the affair."

Report a Secret.

The major said further that he would not give out this report at the present time, if ever, because it was simply a written statement of the investigation, which he had made for his personal use. Inspector Boardman, Chief of Detectives, he said, had been in direct charge of the investigation.

Stevens, it is declared, has told the police that he can identify the negro he says shot him, and that he believes he was able to assist the detectives in running down his assailant. It was intimated at headquarters today, however, that if the negro was not captured within a week or so a statement regarding the case would probably be issued.

Still Hold Theory.

The Times stated more than a week ago that the police had abandoned the theory that Stevens was shot by a negro. In spite of Stevens' positive statement, that he can identify his assailant, the detectives still say that it would have been impossible for anyone to have left the bank building after the shot was fired without being seen.
